1. What if I am told that I am not registered to vote at my polling site?
   - Verify your registration BEFORE Election day.
   - If you are sure you are at the correct polling site, but you are told you are not registered, you will be offered a “provisional ballot.”
   - A provisional ballot will allow you to cast your vote but will only be counted after the election once your voter eligibility has been verified.

2. Do I need to show ID or proof of citizenship to vote?
   - Most states don’t require you to show ID unless it is your first time voting and you registered by mail.
   - Check your state’s law to be sure.
   - To be on the safe side, take a photo ID to the polling site.
   - It is illegal for a poll worker to verify your citizenship status.
   - If you show up without an ID in states that require it, you are still eligible to vote through a provisional ballot.

3. What if I need help with the voting machines or I am not fluent in English?
   - Some people need assistance with voting machines due to disability or age.
   - You do not have to be fluent in English to vote.
   - If you need assistance with the machine or interpreting the ballot, you can get assistance using the machines or interpreting the ballot by bringing a person of your choice (except for your employer or union representative) into the voting booth to help you.

4. What can I do if my voting rights are violated?
   - If you feel as if anyone tries to harass or intimidate you while you are voting, inform a poll worker immediately.
   - Be sure to record and report the incident. Several organizations and government agencies have hotlines where voters can immediately report voting rights violations:
     o Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights (1-866-OUR-VOTE)
     o Department of Justice (1-800-253-3931)
   - Be sure to write down all relevant information about the incident, including:
     o the date and time
     o polling location
     o name(s) of the individual(s) involved
     o a summary of what was said or occurred
     o names and contact information of witnesses.
